

John Fisher

Director

Local Futures Group

John is Director of the Local Futures Group. He has considerable experience in economic development and regeneration, gained with local authorities, regional development agencies and with the Henley Centre for Forecasting, where he established the successful Planning for Local Change programme. At the Local Futures Group he manages a wide range of research and strategy projects, at a regional and local level, and leads the company's work on sustainable community strategies and 'place-shaping'. He is also responsible for the company's Local Knowledge range of products and services, which includes the successful Local Knowledge 'on-line' service.
